

VC lounge

Mr. Frederick William Vanderbilt inaugurated what was to be the first luxury hotel in Puerto Rico on October 16, 1919. The Spanish Revival style designed by Warren and Whitmore created a timeless iconic structure that is the epitome of luxury to this day.

Strolling through its lobby, gardens and hallways you would have found the likes of Errol Flynn, Charles Lindberg, Carlos Gardel or Arthur Rubinstein; perhaps playing a few notes on the piano.

The Condado Vanderbilt became the hub of the social scene in Puerto Rico and the dames of society would revel in “Te-Danzant” a local version of the traditional British tea with Puerto Rican Danzas to accompany them.

Our prized gem went through many facets in its laudable history, always maintaining its special charm and distinction. We are now celebrating our centennial by bringing back those bygone days of splendor and unsurpassed luxury. The Vanderbilt Court is proud to welcome you to take a step back in time; our ambiance, music and cocktails have all been designed to evoke that nostalgia of the glory years and those to come.

Sit back, relax, and feel enveloped by the luxury that only the Condado Vanderbilt and your VC Lounge can bestow.

THE SPIRIT OF THE CARIBBEAN

Few spirits have so complete a connection to their place of origin as rum does with the islands of the Caribbean. The economic and cultural development of the islands cannot be separated from the development and evolution of rum and the rum trade. Like the islands themselves, the story of rum begins humbly, as a local beverage used to quench the thirst of early colonialists.

Today rum has become one of the world's great spirits, diverse in style and ranging in price and quality, with the same diversity and interest as the world's other classic aged spirits.

Rum can be most easily defined as a distilled spirit made from sugarcane or from sugarcane byproducts. Most specifically in the Caribbean this means molasses, as early sugar plantations found they could produce fair quality spirits from this previously discarded byproduct of the sugarmaking process. How the molasses or sugarcane is treated before and during distillation, the methods of distillation, and the methods of aging and maturation of the finished spirit will give different character to the spirit. The great diversity of rum styles has grown from the cultural and traditional rum-making practices as they developed throughout the Caribbean and beyond.

This collection aims to showcase the broad diversity of fine rum styles from around the Caribbean, as well as fine spirits from around the world. We aim to provide the opportunity for tasting these exceptional spirits and a sophisticated forum for discussing them.

Puerto Rican Rum

Puerto Rico is considered the rum capital of the world. With over 30 rum brands and home to the top rum distillers this undoubtedly rings true.

Most of the rum consumed each year around the world comes from Puerto Rico. We are home to the world's largest rum producer and the rum industry continues to serve as an integral component of the local economy.

Showcased amongst our vast selection is Ron del Barrilito. In 1880 Pedro Fernández started distilling rum with brandy and cognac production techniques that had peaked his interest whilst studying in France. Frequent guests at the Hacienda Santa Ana would ask for rum from “the little barrel” that Fernández produced for personal use. When he launched production of his rum the name “Ron del Barrilito” stuck and became the brand, a label that remains to this day.

Our other superstar is Don Q, with its legacy beginning in 1865 when it was first produced by the Serrallés family. Don Q carries a wide diversity of labels and styles. In 1954 Ramón “Monchito” Marrero made history by creating the piña colada using Don Q Rum. Their special edition, “Reserva de la Familia Serrallés” is comparable to the finest cognacs of the world.

Montecristo

Montecristo cigars started from humble beginnings in Cuba in 1935. At the time, there was a tradition of reciting stories to the cigar rollers over their long work days. One of the most popular of these was The Count of Montecristo. So popular, in fact, they named a brand after it. Since that day, Montecristo cigars has become one of the most popular brands in the world. Today they set standards for quality, flavor, and consistency among the top manufacturers. Montecristo now operates out of the Tabacalera de Garcia factory in the Dominican Republic. From mellow-bodied, Connecticut Shade- wrapped blends like the Montecristo Classic and Montecristo White series, to the bold, rich flavors of Montecristo Epic and Montecristo Media Noche, this brand is available in a variety of premium handmade blends for all palates.
